

Curative and Seasoning Herbs as Complementary Offer of Fruška Gora National Park

Bojana Kalenjuk, Dragan Tešanović

Department of Geography, Tourism and Hotel Management, Faculty of Science, University of Novi Sad, Trg Dositeja Obradovića 3, 21000 Novi Sad

National Park Fruška gora with its structure has many natural resources of great importance, including those that have an important role in human nutrition and gastronomy of Fruška gora area and its surroundings. This paper's aim is to look at the structure of herbs and spices, present plant and animal species, respectively wildlife, which can be found in this national park, and are of great importance when it comes to food, and other elements that may be applicable and are of importance, such as mushrooms and honey. The aim of this paper is to present another group of natural resources, which may represent an important determinant for the development of gastronomy, and thus show another type of uniqueness of this National park, as well as unique local gastronomic products, characterized by the production of foods in Fruška gora using herbs and spices.

Keywords: Fruška gora, natural resources, food, curative and seasoning herbs, gastronomy.

Corresponding author: bojanakalenjuk@yahoo.com