

Barsana Monastery, a Gem among the Wooden Buildings of Maramures, Romania

Vasile Surd¹, Bogdan-Nicolae Pacurar¹, Stanca Baraian²

¹ Faculty of Geography, Babes-Bolyai University Cluj-Napoca, Romania

² "Ioan Opris" Elementary School, Turda, Romania

Barsana monastery was reestablished after the fall of Romanian communism, emphasizing the art of woodcraft in the "Country of Maramures" Through the great number and originality of its pieces, all wooden, the Barsana complex is the most representative and the most valuable siste of its kind in Romania.

The Barsana Monastery complex is the most representative religious site of Maramures and represents a synthesis of the superb wood craftsmanship of local men, granting it great touristic potential. The monastery can be visited all year long, having sleeping quarters ready to house the visitors.

Keywords: Romania, Maramures Barsana, wooden monastery

Corresponding author: vsurd@geografie.ubbcluj.ro